LIBRARY ISSUES RESUME ON HORACE BIMILLENNIUM

NOTABLE WORK ACHIEVED

Father Hacker Receives Special Mention For Settings Of Odes

As certain critics have pointed out, the real year of the Bimillennium of Horace's birth is 1936. Thus it is timely to mention a few more details of the Horace Celebration in Baltimore.

The Pratt Library recently published a circular letter containing an account of such activities. The Library's own contribution was a notable one. Among other events a series of lectures was given from October, 1934 to January, 1936, all of which were well attended, and many of which are to be published in permanent form.

A special feature of the celebration was the window display of Horatiana at the Pratt Library, in which appeared the Horace Medallion created by Mr. William Marks Simpson, Fellow of the American Academy at Rome, and at present the Director of the Rinehart School of Sculpture in Baltimore. Mr. Simpson and Mr. Hart, of the Library Staff, spent months collecting portraits of the poet, from which emerged the likeness by Mr. Simpson, which has been the subject of high praise among the classical scholars. The medallion

Annual Junior Prom To Be Held At Maryland Casualty On May 1

Officers Of Class Make Trip To New York To Settle On Orchestra

The date for the Annual Junior Prom has been definitely settled for the evening of Friday, May 1. It will take place in the spacious Maryland Casualty Auditorium.

Although the arrangements have not been completed for the selection of the orchestra, there are three or four choices in mind. Once the orchestra is decided upon, the Juniors will have set the stage for the outstanding social event of the year.

MESSRS. WELLS AND KIDD TALK BEFORE MENDEL CLUB MEMBERS

DISCUSS FOOD ABSORPTION

At the most recent lecture of the Mendel Club, on March 10, instead of the customary single lecturer, there were two. These were Messrs. Wells and Kidd of Junior Year. The topic of Mr. Kidd's lecture was "Paramesium: The Function and Relation of Vacuoles." Speaking of the food vacuoles and cyclosis, he stressed the fact that it is a sort of primitive circulatory system, and that the body moves to the incoming nourishment rather than that the nourishment is carried to various parts of the body.

The next speaker, Mr. Wells, discussed the interesting and important topic, "Food Absorption and Metabolism." Speaking of the digestive system, Mr. Wells said, "For the little attention we give this system, we demand a lot of it. Silently and uncomplainingly it pursues the end for which nature intended it. We seldom appreciate its importance until it ceases to function properly." He stated in conclusion, that a thorough knowledge of the process is of extreme importance to the well-being and health of everyone.

MISS KATHERINE BRÉGY SPEAKS TO THOMPSON POETRY SOCIETY

Catholic Critic And Poetess Speaks On Alice Meynell And Other Poets

The most recent meeting of the Francis Thompson Poetry Society was also one of the most interesting held this season. The gathering took place on February 28, at Notre Dame of Maryland, and the eminent Catholic critic and poetess, Katherine Brégy, was the guest speaker.

Guest Speaker Introduced

When the minutes of the last meeting had been read and the business part of the program was over, Sister Francis, President of Notre Dame, introduced Miss Brégy. The guest speaker began by saying that she had had no idea of addressing the group, since she had come to Notre Dame that morning to lecture

FRANK J. OTENASEK, '33

F. J. OTENASEK '33 TO MAKE MEDICAL ADDRESS

On March 27, Frank J. Otenasek, a Loyola Alumnus who graduated in 1933, will speak before the American Physiological Society at the Willard Hotel in Washington. Mr. Otenasek, who is now in his third year at the Hopkins Medical School, is one of the few students to address the group, and will deliver a thesis on which he and Mr. J. L. Lilienthal, Jr., also of Hopkins, have been collaborating for the last year and a half at the Hopkins Medical School.

The title of his discourse will be: "Decordicate Polynic Painting and Sham Rage in the Cat: Their Separate Central Mechanisms in the Diencephalon."

While he was at Loyola, Mr. Otenasek was a member of the Greyhound Staff, and was Prefect of the Sodality.

DR. VANDEN BOSCH PRESENTS LECTURE ON DENTAL ALLOYS

BRINGS VALUABLE EXHIBIT

On February 11, a capacity gathering of members and guests heard Dr. Vanden Bosch of the University of Maryland lecture on old and new dental alloys. In substantiation of the progress of dentistry, he displayed and explained an exhibit of rare dental specimens, contrasting them with more recent departures in dental restoratives.

Gives Historical Outline

As an introduction, Dr. Bosch gave a brief historical outline of the ancient methods of repairing teeth, discussing the origin of a wide variety of materials. There had been no apparent improvement in dentistry until the advent of the nineteenth century, when dental restoratives both in America and in Europe were introduced. This period was marked by the inception of the making of false teeth, crude as they may have been, as well as the use of gold, ivory, and porcelain as dental appliances. However, no definite progress was made until the twentieth century, when dental materials and dental methods became standardized.

LOYOLA COLLEGE YEAR BOOK RAPIDLY BECOMING REALITY

Staff Requests Assistance Of Students To Obtain Subscriptions

The plans for the "Green and Gray," the Loyola College Year Book, which were formulated in the early part of the first semester, are rapidly materializing and becoming parts of what the Seniors hope will be the greatest annual ever published at this school.

Subscriptions Needed

According to the editors, all that is needed to assure complete success for their efforts is a large number of subscriptions. In this, the student body is asked to give as much assistance as possible to help make the last enterprise of the departing Senior class the greatest achievement of their four years spent at Evergreen.

LOYOLA LOOKS FORWARD TO NEW "LOYOLA NIGHT"

TO BE HELD AT ALCAZAR

Novel Evening Featuring Concert, Three Plays, Followed By Dance

Wednesday, April 15, will be "Loyola Night" at the Alcazar, an unprecedented entertainment and "get together" for Loyola and the friends of Loyola. It will consist of a musical and dramatic program, to be followed by a dance. The program is under the general direction of Rev. A. M. Fremgen, S.J. Two new Loyola college songs will be sung for the first time. One an "Alma Mater" song, is the work of J. O'Neill Miller, '37. The other is a spirited cheering song in the form of a March. The musical part of the entertainment will consist of these two Loyola songs rendered by a double quartet of students, and several vocal and instrumental numbers by talent from the ranks of the Alumni and undergraduates.

Three one-act plays will be produced. The first, entitled "The Tryst," is an entertaining sojourn in the realm of the mysterious. "The Cobbler," the second of these plays, is a human interest story, and will be followed by a very entertaining comedy, "Vox Populi." Then there will be dancing until one o'clock to the music of Rudy Killian and his Kadets.

Sodality Progresses Favorably In Movement To Present Talks

Mr. Thomas J. Grogan Speaks To Members On "The Side- lights On Social Work"

The Sodality is now under way with its newly instituted program, the gist of which is, according to Father Risacher, "to provide at each meeting a little talk on subjects about which every sodalist should have some idea." In conformity with the plan, at the meeting on February 25, Mr. Dinan, '36, gave a brief discourse on "Goodness." He explained the nature of this quality philosophically and discussed how it may be achieved. At

Loyola Night

We will not repeat here the details of the forthcoming "Loyola Night". We all know what it is, where it is going to be, and when. We are already talking about it among ourselves, and there is but one thing left to do. That is, for each one of us to do our part to make it successful. Since it is a new activity at Loyola, it needs and deserves the enthusiasm of the student body to make it a success. Therefore we should talk about it not only among ourselves, but even more among those outside the school. It is not something which we will attend with a sense of duty, nor with the interest which we manifest with regard to other amusements and entertainments. Loyola Night is intended to be a unique event, which will annually afford the utmost pleasure in prospect, in realization and in retrospect.

The Quints

Were Cicero a contemporary he would undoubtedly find some stronger comment to make about our present day than "O tempora, O mores!" With all our high pressure twentieth century development there seems to be ample indication at times that common sense has been outmoded and has fled from our midst.

Witness our craze for publicity, fostered by an alert, see-everything, print-it-the-next-moment press. The excessively morbid curiosity of the modern populace is the alchemy which turns this publicity to gold. Let someone become the victim of a freak accident, a scandalous court proceeding or the passive recipient of a stroke of luck and he is worth a fortune as a vaudeville and movie attraction.

The Dionne quintuplets are the most striking example of this. All they had to do to have a fortune placed in their chubby hands was to be born! Such is the American "chump public" as it has been so aptly styled. Ever since their birth there has been a rising tide of hysteria concerning them. Money has poured in upon them to insure that they will live and thrive and reach comely womanhood in due time. And why all this generosity? Is it the milk of human kindness? No! It is merely the craving of the public to satisfy its abnormal curiosity. It is an impulse comparable to your solicitude in the capture and preservation of a two-headed frog.

Judge Valin seeks advice. If he would carry out his duty to his young charges he must do one thing. He must have Marie, Annette, Cecile, Yvonne and Emilie brought up in the most natural atmosphere possible. All elaborate set plans must be avoided as dangerous. Their present hot-house mode of existence must be gradually modified and then discarded. Unless this is done there is an excellent chance that they will develop, from a collective abnormality, into individual ones. Finally he must restore to them, by kindly care and understanding, the natural advantages of which their thousands of self-appointed foster parents in their misguided and maudlin generosity have deprived them.

Campus Clippings

W. D. McG.

Our congratulations to the students of John Carroll University of Cleveland. This year they are not only celebrating their Sixteenth Annual Promenade, but they are also commemorating the Golden Jubilee of the founding of the university.

The play's the thing! So thought the student body of that college when their Little Theatre Society presented Sydney Howard's "Yellow Jack." An editorial in The Carroll News hailed both the spirit of the clever Thespians and the presence of a large, appreciative audience. Which goes to show that "where there's a will, there's a way." This should arouse in our own student body a co-operative interest in the forth-coming Loyola Night, which promises to be a gala affair—if each and every student does his bit to help.

Perhaps the string of cars on both sides of Cold Spring Lane are well-known to most of us, but how many of us could identify them by the sounds of their motors? Well, several boarding students at Hood College, in Frederick, discovered this art when they were awakened by the putts-putts of early arriving day students. We are not quite so keen, but many of us wish we were next to the fellow who insists on blowing his horn off, when we are struggling in "lab" with an experiment that just won't work out.

To remain in good stead with the students of the Classics (especially Sophomores) our orbs just came upon an article in The Fordham Ram, dealing with the Bimillennium Horatianum. A bound volume dedicated to the two-thousand-year-old bard recently appeared on the campus at Fordham. This unique book was made up of articles written by students; fittingly so, for as one Fordham professor said, "Since Horace was intimately connected with undergraduates, the most sincere tribute should come from them." And in our humble opinion, it did come from them. They rate an "Optime Quidem!"

There is an unusual column in the pages of The Philippine Collegian. Its purpose is to publish a list of birthdays of the week. We wonder what some of the "old men" or "kiddies" around here would say if we columned their ages. One good thing about it is, as "The Collegian" reports, some of the listees gave "delightful parties." Might be something in it, at that.

Evergreen Reflections

W. A. S.

Spring

When you get that fuzzy feeling
Somewhere in between the ears,
Peaceful rest is most appealing
And ambition disappears.
Ah, then, 'tis Spring! 'tis Spring!

When the sky looks kinda sickly
And it rains for most the day,
Then the winter's fading quickly—
But the colds are here to stay.
Ah, then, 'tis Spring! 'tis Spring!

In spite of the flood of adverse criticism, which my former adventures into the golden realms of verse provoked, I find myself breaking out into song again. With a fine show of courage and a disdainful disregard for the carping of the vulgar element, I am again in the midst of the cultured racket. The occasion is, of course, that time of the year when humanity in general and a student in particular feels that he is nearly out of the woods, so to speak. Spring has its psychological effects, sunny skies, balmy breezes and, if the present weather holds, fine ice skating.

League Of Nations

The recent amazing international crisis that has thrown Europe into a turmoil, has its reverberations even in the peaceful halls of the College. Much of the "foreign element" in the student body has suddenly become rabidly partisan, even going so far as to debate the ethics of the attitude the nations involved have taken. As a disinterested bystander, and one who desires above all to see peace and sweet accord prevail, I feel that things have come to a pretty pass, when our most estimable members start "Ethics-debating". Something has to be done, especially in view of the fact that there is an intra-mural basketball league operating at the present writing. At first thought, you may fail to note any connection between the two. But there is a very close one, let me assure you. Since these court engagements have a way of getting around to be pretty warlike, and often threaten to end in low brawling, the inadvisability of letting the delicate European situation color the basketball contests can readily be appreciated. If certain parties could take to settling racial differences in these already frothy gatherings, the harassed Otts Kelly and his faithful S.I.A.C. Stooges would have to close up shop.

The logical solution to the problem would be to establish a miniature League of Nations, in which all interested factions could discuss the situation calmly and in a spirit of mutual understanding. Even the Mussolini adherents could be admitted if worse comes to worst.

The Clocks

In my last column I let it be known that I was interested in organizing a band of mice. It seems my attractive offer did not fall entirely upon deaf ears. Witness the following to the tune of "Grandfather's Clock".

Loyola's old clocks were a charm to behold
As they hung high aloft in her halls;
They watched the long face of each student who strolled
To his classes obeying their calls.
Every morning at nine they set pace to that long line
And not once their proud duty belied—
But they stopped short, never to go again
When old Kingo died!

Chorus: Many years without slumbering, tick, tock, tick tock,
The school hours numbering, tick, tock, tick, tock,
They stopped short, never to go again
When old Kingo died!

When Blue Rock expired they began to look awry
And their faces in sorrow they veiled;
They would tick for awhile and then tock with a sigh
As for Blue Rock they mournfully wailed.
Ah, they bore that great shock, did each manly-hearted clock,
And might still have recovered their pride—
But they stopped short, never to go again
When old Kingo died!—Repeat Chorus.

SCRIBBLERS' CORNER

It may be of interest to our readers that the following poem gained second place in the state-wide contest that was conducted last year under the sponsorship of Dr. Ebling of Goucher College. The Ode assigned for translation was Horace's Book III, Ode IX.

RECONCILIATION

Horace: While you were happy in my arms,
And longed for no strange friend's embrace,
I did not care to change your charms
For any kingly Persian's place.

Lydia: And when I was your only flame
That bold, blonde Chloe was unknown;
Your verses brought me greater fame
Than prince's seat or monarch's throne.

Horace: But Chloe, in sweet Thracian dress,
Now rules my life with tuneless lyre.
I'd gladly die if I could bless
Her fate, who is my one desire.

Lydia: And Calais, Thurian of note,
Inspires in me such burning love
That twice I'd cross on Charon's boat
If that could stay the fates above.

Horace: But what if former love return
And once more bring our hearts together?
If fairest Chloe I should spurn,
Could Lydia here her wild heart tether?

Lydia: Yes, we would make a happy pair;
And you, tho' fickle as the sea
And touchy as a hungry bear,
Would strangely suit me to a tee!

MERCY SOMEWHAT STRAINED

A most unusual sermon was preached recently by the Rev. Dr. Charles Francis Potter, when he spoke before the First Humanist Society of New York on "Mercy Killings". It seems almost incredible. He seriously advocated the passing of a bill which would legalize "mercy killings". According to his theory, all the imbeciles in our insane asylums should be put to death in a lethal chamber. Their passage to eternity would be painless and the money that is customarily spent upon the insane and infirm (approximately thirty million dollars), should be applied to rearing children in surroundings which would be conducive to good health and sound morals.

Dr. Potter would have psycho-analysts, psychiatrists and other mental and physical specialists examine each patient before the gas is administered, in order to verify the disability of the patient. This process of examination would take place in the institution in which the insane and disabled are housed. The procedure would be slightly altered in the home, where old and infirm patients would be put to death at the discrimination of those upon whom the burden of the helpless rests.

Dr. Potter's argument is absolutely unethical. God, Who gives life to every one of His created beings, is the sole author of life, and therefore is the only One Who is free to recall that life. For this reason man cannot commit suicide, he cannot murder, nor can he execute unless the crime deserves the punishment. Now, for doctors, or psychiatrists, and least of all, those unskilled either in mental or physical disorders, to take upon their hands the responsibility of putting the disabled to death, is nothing less than murder. Clothe their act in what humanitarian garments you will, they are still taking a life which they have no right to take, and therefore committing murder.

Follow the above example, and drop us a line when you hear some Alumni News.

Evidently the Luncheon Club has won the approval of the entire Alumni Association. The attendance was nearly doubled at the last meeting. The next luncheon is scheduled for March 24, at the Salad Bowl on East Fayette Street. Why not drop in and see what it's like?

Dominic Fleming, ex '30, who was graduated from the Georgetown Law school last year, has obtained a position in the judicial department of the Fidelity and Trust Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard J. Tally, '29, are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a daughter, who was born on February 27. Before her marriage Mrs. Tally was Miss Emma L. Scheely.

Edward H. Burke, '06, was recently elected president of the Hibernian Society in Baltimore.

Thomas J. Kenny after passing the Maryland bar examination in June has opened his law office at 16 St. Paul Street.

Rev. William A. Storck, ex '05, is to be complimented on his direction of "The Fool's Bauble" presented by the Loyola High School thespians. The splendid character portrayal and elaborate scenery received special praise.

Dr. Frederick F. Ruzicka, '12, was recently operated on for appendicitis. However he is back at work again after a brief sojourn recuperating in Florida.

Dr. Leo L. Kulacki, '27, has opened his office at 126 S. Patterson Park Ave. Dr. Kulacki was graduated from the Georgetown Medical School and finished his internship at Bon Secours Hospital.

Of interest to the Alumni in general is the fact that March twelfth of this year marked the twenty-fifth anniversary of the death of Father Francis J. Brady, S.J., former rector of the College. To Father Brady was due the development of the Novena of Grace into an annual religious event of immense proportions in Baltimore.

"Loyola Night" is to be an annual affair, part of a program instituted to make the students and the Alumni "Loyola conscious," and to arouse the spirit which should play such an important part in school life. The program itself makes the entertainment worth-while, but April fifteenth is also "Loyola Night," and that means that the students and friends of Loyola will be at the Alcazar. Be sure to meet your friends at the Alcazar on the fifteenth, help them to enjoy themselves, and help yourselves to an entertaining evening.

consists of a representation of Horace on one side, and a representation of the Bandusian Fountain on the other.

The leaflet distributed by the Library made special mention of the work done by Father Hacker. We quote the following tribute: "Of interest to both classicists and musicians is the work of Father Hacker of Loyola College, whose settings to the Odes of Horace are unique in having been composed with strict adherence to metrical quantities. When presented in Baltimore, they were enthusiastically received by the large audience which attended the Pratt Library's December meeting, and have since been in request in this country and abroad. The work of Father Hacker as a composer and hymnologist is well known".

The public schools have also been benefited by the celebration. The Baltimore Department of Education chose the Bimillennium year as a suitable time to encourage the study of Latin, and the pamphlet points out that the Macmillan Company has adopted the Simpson medalion for use in one of their recent publications.

The Virgil Bimillennium, which was held five years ago, was so successful that the time and effort expended upon it were fully justified. It is believed that the same will be true with regard to the Horatian Celebration. The Library is to be congratulated for its highly successful effort to make the great Latin poet better known and loved, and for advancing the cause of classical education generally.

ANNUAL JUNIOR PROM

Over the last week-end, President Donald M. Powers and Vice-President Joseph J. Mack of the Junior Class made a trip to New York to confer with booking agents.

ITEMS

from the
MANSE

The Lenten season found several of the Fathers active in the pulpits of this city and elsewhere. Lenten courses were preached by Father Beglan at St. Mary's Church, Harrisburg, Pa., and by Father Reynolds at St. Elizabeth's Home, Baltimore. Father Gillis maintained his fame as an eloquent High Mass preacher at St. Ignatius' Church of this city. Father Geoghan spoke on Communism to a combined group of parish societies at Holy Cross Church, also of this city. Several other Fathers conducted a series of sermons at the College of Notre Dame.

At the smoker of the Holy Name Society of St. Rose of Lima's Church, Brooklyn, Md., Father Ayd delivered an interesting talk on "Experiences in the Death House." The men were deeply impressed. Father Ayd also spoke at the Memorial Exercises held by the Concord Club in honor of the late former Governor, Albert C. Ritchie. He stressed the excellent character of the great governor manifested in the faithful performance of the minor duties of a Chief Executive. Many of Governor Ritchie's relatives were present.

The directors of Walters Art Gallery have invited Father Hacker to collaborate with them in deciphering ancient manuscripts of Gregorian Chant. We congratulate Father Hacker on this high honor.

Among recent visitors at the Manse may be mentioned our cheerful Psychology Professor of last year, Father Raymond Anable; Father Edward Ryan, who taught here as a scholastic a few years ago and has recently returned with doctor's honors from Louvain to become Professor of History at Woodstock, Md., and Father Francis McNiff, looking stronger and younger than when he taught at Evergreen in the years 1928-1931.

MESSRS. WELLS AND KIDD TALK

Mr. Reed is to be highly congratulated for the excellent exhibition on Winter Botany, which he displayed at the Pratt Library. It was very well done and reflects a large amount of credit on both Mr. Reed who conceived it and Father Didusch who sponsored it.

CHEMISTRY CLUB

New dental alloys have given to the modern dentist a wide and intricate field of work. This point was effectively illustrated by Dr. Bosch in the remainder of his lecture. The study of dental alloys calls for a complete scientific knowledge of physical laws, metallurgy, and chemistry. The work of the dentist today comprises experimental analysis of the properties of metals, testing them for hardness, resistance to scratching, ability to withstand stress, malleability, ductility, thermal expansion, conductivity of heat, fusibility, weldability, and effect of color change on the lustre of materials.

The metals of greatest importance to the dentist today include silver and mercury, which together form an amalgam, which has numerous uses. At present, gold is the ideal metal for fillings.

Interesting Exhibits

By far, the most interesting among the exhibits was a set of false teeth originally owned by George Washington. Among the other interesting specimens was a plaster cast of the face of Benjamin Franklin, illustrating the effect of the early false teeth on the facial expression. Other noteworthy relics included a plaster cast of the teeth of Mrs. Tom Thumb as well as those of General Winfield Scott; death mask of Sir Isaac Newton; quite a few antiquated dental instruments. These rare and valuable specimens of dental artistry coupled with Dr. Vanden Bosch's most instructive and fluent lecture served to widen extensively the Chemists' Club's knowledge of dentistry and dental alloys.

SODALITY

the next meeting, on March 11th, Mr. Mahoney, '38, delivered a talk on "Conscience," showing how Conscience distinguishes right from wrong and exists variously in various individuals.

Mr. Grogan Speaks

At the same meeting there was an additional treat for the sodalists. Mr. Thomas J. Grogan, '29, addressed the Sodality on "The Sidelights on Social Work." In his delightful manner Mr. Grogan emphasized the present need for intelligent social workers and particularly for such workers from the ranks of Catholic college graduates. He recommended the good work certain alumni of Notre Dame and Loyola are doing in their fight in the Maryland Legislature against Birth Control and Sterilization. In conclusion, he encouraged the sodalists to help as much as possible in this field of Catholic Action.

Roll Call Circulation

The Roll-Call, the Sodality's miniature newspaper, has been faithfully making its appearance at each meeting. The present circulation is eighty-five copies. It is quickly becoming an important factor in uniting the members and in making the Sodality a more interesting and influential activity at the school.

She enlarged especially on Alice Meynell, whom she pronounced decidedly modern and masculine. At the conclusion of her remarks she read, on request of the audience, some of her own poems. These bore out the high reputation she enjoys as a literary artist and poet.

LOYOLA SPORTS

Will O' Wisp

W. J. O'D.

Although the court togs of the Green and Grey have long since been put aside, and the records of past games have been inscribed in the pages of history, nevertheless the champion has just been crowned. It was a long hard fight, and finally Tom Kibler's famous "Flying Pentagon" claimed its first laurel wreath in the four year old Inter-collegiate League.

It is indeed true, our predictions became realities, and Loyola spurting in her final three league encounters put forth the type of basketball that vanquished the vanquisher, and showed that, even if we couldn't win the championship, we could defeat the best the league could offer.

Although we can boast of no pennants or crowns, Loyola closed the season with an excellent average and, had we not had that brief mid-season slump, I venture to say we would have taken the place of one of the contenders for the crown.

And so with the close of another cage season, we pick an All-opponents team. The players, all chosen for their individual excellence and their steadying influence in team play, are for a first team—Forwards: Lambros, St. John's, and Segadelli, Mt. St. Mary's; Center: Guokas, St. Joseph's; Guards: Huffman, Washington, and Leahy, Mt. St. Mary's.

Intramurals

Intramurals have not become as chronic as the varsity campaign, and still the back boards throb with keen rivalry of sectional teams. But the knell is being sounded, and within a few days, the championship of the college will be decided.

President Arthur C. Kelly, of the Student's Intramural Athletic Committee has done some very praiseworthy work in arranging a schedule and cooperating in every way to see that the intramural league has run efficiently and smoothly.

The interest and the enthusiastic spirit with which the majority of the students have accepted the move only goes to show its popularity. It seems only fitting, then, that Father Jacobs and the Athletic Association should, in accordance with past intramural basketball leagues, give some awards similar to those given in the Tennis Tournament and the Baseball League.

Anyone looking back over several years will agree that the Intramural Basketball this season has been most successful, and therefore deserves commendation so that such a spirit of enthusiasm may continue.

Baseball

In the Spring, a young man's fancies turn lightly to thoughts of baseball as well as love. This season, the Greyhounds will have a new coach in Mr. Joseph Kelley, S.J., who has consented to devote his time toward the developing of a new team, and it is only out of a spirit of fairness that he should receive 100% cooperation from the student body. So come on, you baseball players: Let's carry on in baseball the way we left off in basketball.

Last year was Loyola's first venture into the realm of the Maryland Collegiate Baseball League, a venture which, sad to relate, did not turn out too well for the Greyhounds. But this year, under a new regime, there are promises of much better results. Together with the veterans of last season and the new material, which, incidentally, looks quite promising, Mr. Kelley should be able to shape up a team that will worry opposing clubs as much as the court Greyhounds did the season just closed.

Greyhound Baseball Team To Have New Coach This Season

Loyola To Meet Hopkins In League Opener At Oriole Park

With Spring "just around the corner", baseball hopefuls at Loyola are eagerly awaiting the first call for practice from Mr. Kelley, S.J., who has succeeded "Bill" Liston as coach of the Greyhound nine this season.

Due to the extreme severity of the winter, the field is in very poor condition, but not a moment will be lost in putting it in shape for outdoor practice as soon as the ground has dried out sufficiently. Meanwhile some of the more ambitious candidates have been loosening up their arms in the Gymnasium.

Mr. Kelley has quite a task facing him to whip a team into shape by April 8. On this date the Greyhounds meet Johns Hopkins in the opening Maryland Collegiate League tussle at Oriole Park. There are only five regulars of last year back for this season: Bremmer, Bracken and Bill Smith, infielders; "Don" Powers, a pitcher; and "Ed" Gromacki, an outfielder. The new material, however, looks quite promising, with Powers, George Smith, Broderick, Connor and Lazzati up from Loyola High, ready to battle it out with Mantz, O'Neill, Matricianni, Reddy and McClure for the other positions.

The Greyhounds will miss the slugging of Tom Bracken, All-Maryland Catcher last year, and "Tom" Carney, first-sacker, both of whom will probably be unable to play this year.

The present schedule calls for nine games, and two

The Freshman No. 2 team and the Soph No. 1 played an important game, which the Sophomores won 22-14. The defeat eliminated the Frosh team and left the Junior No. 1 teams tied for the league leadership. Each of these teams has a game remaining to be played. It is very probable that a playoff may be necessary to decide the winner. There is a remote possibility, however, that the league schedule will end with four teams tied.

The Frosh-Soph game was a rough and very loosely played contest. The teams battled on even terms through the first half, which ended with the score tied at 10-10. In the second half, the Sophs were effective on outside shots, and piled up a comfortable lead. They staved off a last minute rally by the Frosh to emerge the victors, 22-14.

pending with Western Maryland.

Mr. Kelly has issued another call for candidates, stating that every position is wide open. The student body should back him to the limit, and the present number of candidates should at least be doubled. Those interested should contact Guy Matricianni, Varsity Manager, as soon as possible.

The Schedule:

- *April 8—Hopkins at Oriole Park.
- *April 21—St. John's at Annapolis.
- *April 23—Washington College at Evergreen.
- April 27—State Teachers at Towson.
- *April 29—Mt. St. Mary's at Evergreen.
- *May 1—St. John's at Evergreen.
- *May 11—Mt. St. Mary's at Emmitsburg.
- *May 18—Hopkins at Evergreen.
- *May 21—Washington College at Chestertown.

Greyhound Quint Reaches End Of Successful League Season

Four Varsity Regulars Gain Places On Teams Picked By Sports Editors

Now that the Varsity basketball team has completed its drive down the home stretch, leaving in its wake the bodies of all the League-leaders including the championship Washington College quint, the time has come to sit back and review the record of the season.

We find that out of the ten League games played Loyola won six for an average of .600. Except for the fact that the schedule required the Varsity to play its opening games against the two most powerful teams in the League on their home courts, their final drive would have pushed them even beyond third place.

The average for non-league games was .800, Loyola losing only two games out of ten, both of which were lost to St. Joseph College, Philadelphia. Among the victims of their sharp shooting was Yale University defeated by a 40-27 score.

The high point scorer of the team was "Ace" Knight. He totaled 149 points. Guy Matricianni was next with 135 points. Knight, Carney, Joe Kelly and Russel won positions on the All-Maryland teams. The most improved player in the State over last year's form was adjudged by the sports writers to be Guy

More Track Candidates Needed If Loyola Is To Enter League

The possibility of a track team at Loyola seems to be fading out of the picture due to the apparent lack of interest on the part of the student body. A meeting held last Friday by Otts Kelly revealed that despite the fact that Loyola has among its students several high school track stars, the response from the remainder of the students has been woefully weak.

As it is necessary to file an entry in the Maryland Inter-collegiate Track Meet as soon as possible, the students who wish to represent the school Matricianni of Loyola. Loyola in all scored 655 points to the 571 scored by her opponents.

One of the interesting facts about the past basketball season was that three Freshmen, Mantz, Keech and Broderick made the Varsity squad and saw action in the course of the year. The high spot of the season was the thrilling drive that Loyola made toward the end of the season when Mt. St. Mary's, St. John's and Washington were defeated.

Prospects for next year seem bright despite the fact that Knight and Matricianni will be graduated. Carney, Wayson, Russell, Kelly, Keech and Bremer will be back with Mantz there to get the tap. The personal records for the past season are:

ICE HOCKEY

Those interested in ice hockey will be glad to hear that Johnny Wells of the Junior class as captain of the Wonder Bar team, was the outstanding player and high scorer in the Commercial League.

should signify their intention immediately. Unless they do this and increase the number of candidates for the sport, all hope for the establishment of a team will disappear. Kelly has announced that another meeting will be held this Thursday and unless the turnout is large, the sport will be dropped.

There has been a great deal said in favor of a track team at Loyola during the past few years and now is the time for its devotees to back up their plea. Remember that the one way in which you can aid the establishment of a track team is to report as a candidate to Otts Kelly at the meeting on Thursday.

BADMINTON COURT IN GYM

The South end of the Alumni Gymnasium is now equipped with two Badminton courts, due to the increasing interest among the students in this fascinating game.

During the last few years Badminton has become one of most popular of indoor sports, and professional players are touring the country, playing exhibition games to further acquaint fans with its intricacies. Recently, a nationwide tournament was held in New York, in which an Alumnus of Loyola College, Bogue Cummings, reached the semi-finals.

If the students show sufficient interest, a tournament will probably be arranged by the S.I.A.C. run in the same manner as the 'tennis tournament. Who knows? Possibly there may turn up another Bogue Cummings.

aroma...it's as much a part of Chesterfield as the taste

Did you ever notice the difference in the aroma of Chesterfield tobacco?

Every person who knows about tobacco will understand this... for to get a pleasing aroma is just like getting a pleasing taste from fruit.

Mild ripe tobaccos, home-grown, and welded with the right kind of tobacco from far-off Greece and Turkey (Samsoun, Smyrna, Xanthi and Cavalla)...

...that's why Chesterfield has a more pleasing aroma.

...with that pleasing aroma
